7. [redacted] Bill Raiford, Congressional Research Service, Library of Congress, called and inquired as to the legal basis for compartmented clearances. I explained that security clearances in Government are based upon Executive Order 10450 and that compartmented clearances would rest upon this basic authority. However, in effect they are a prescribed limitation of "need-to-know" and provide for the control of the dissemination and access to sensitive information. I gave him a reference to the Order and the Internal Security Act of 1950 upon which the Order is based.
